

Holiday Toll Rises To 614

(By The Associated Press)
Traffic 461
Fires 76
Miscellaneous 77
Total 614

The pace of traffic fatalities on the nation's highways slackened in the waning hours of the Christmas holiday weekend. The National Safety Council said if the trend continues it will be comparatively the safest Christmas holiday since 1949.

By midnight, EST, 453 persons had died in traffic accidents, 75 had perished in fires and 77 were victims of miscellaneous accidents. The over-all violent accidental toll stood at 605.

But a council spokesman noted that the present pace would put the final figure below last year's.

Quick Shots End A Tragic Christmas

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP)—Four quick shots, a muffled scream, then a momentary stillness... it was the end of a tragic Christmas in the small southwestern Pennsylvania town of Butler.

Carl Thomas, a 30-year-old unemployed steelworker with a history of mental illness, had killed his wife and taken his own life.

Only half an hour before, state police with the aid of Thomas' mother and father had led the couple's three children safely from the house in which Thomas and his wife were barricaded for nearly 14 hours.

Thomas also had shot and wounded two relatives, Bartolo Comis, 34, and Steve Baloga, 36, both of nearby Burgettstown. Comis was listed in critical condition at the Washington Hospital.

Baloga was fair. The tragedy began to unravel on Christmas Eve at the little one-story white home. There was a violent quarrel between Thomas and his wife, Helen, 27. A telephone call from the couple's oldest child, eight-year-old Michael, brought Comis and Baloga rushing to the Thomas home.

Police Summoned As they started to enter, Thomas fired four shots, hitting Comis in the abdomen and Baloga in the groin. State police were summoned. But Thomas barricaded himself and his wife in a back bedroom. The children obediently stayed in another room.

Mrs. Mildred Edolston, a neighbor, said she talked to Michael on the telephone and pleaded with him to bring his brother and sister out of the house.

"He kept telling me 'I can't, I can't,'" Mrs. Edolston related. "He said his mother had told him to get back in bed."

Meanwhile, state police had surrounded the home but they could do nothing because of the children. They summoned Carl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas of nearby Florence, who had been visiting in Ohio.

After several unsuccessful pleas to their son to come out of the house peacefully, they turned their efforts to the grandchildren. Shortly after dawn Christmas Day, the children, Michael, David, 6, and Elizabeth, 3½, were led from the house.

State police then lobbed tear gas shells into the home. The shots and the muffled scream followed. The couple was dead.

Mrs. Thomas was found lying on a bed, her hands tied behind her back. She had been severely beaten before being shot, state police said. Thomas was lying on the floor, surrounded by a .22 caliber target pistol, a rifle and a shotgun.

In the front room of the small house sat a small two-foot artificial silver Christmas tree, gaily ornamented with lights and colorful baubles. Several unopened Christmas packages were beneath the tree. A variety of Christmas cards hung on the walls and doorways.

Space Rubble Yields Clues To Earth's Age

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A nightmarish merry-go-round of rubble in space is yielding new clues to the age of earth—and even the origin of life, a scientist said Monday.

Fragments—actually meteorites—from this weird assembly of battered miniature planets and planet debris pelt the earth continually.

On these stone and iron fragments, scientists have found chemicals remarkably similar to the building blocks of life. Dr. Edward Anders of the University of Chicago told the 126th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Yet the meteorites themselves are at least 4½ billion years old—nearly four billion years older than the oldest relics of life found on earth.

It indicates at least some of the prerequisites of life existed in space perhaps 150 to 200 million and well below the NSC's pre-holiday estimate of 510 traffic fatalities.

The council said: "The toll has taken a turn for the better and there now is a chance it will be below the toll for the Christmas weekend of last year. That will mean it will be the comparatively safest Christmas weekend since 1949 when the (three-day) traffic death toll was 413."

Late Monday, as motorists headed homeward over roads made hazardous in some sections by rain and ice, the death rate dipped to below six an hour. The NSC preholiday estimate was based on a probable rate of six or more fatalities an hour.

The traffic toll in a comparable 78-hour period last Christmas was 493, an average of about six deaths an hour.

"The National Safety Council appeals to every driver to realize that traffic in the closing hours of the holiday not only is heavy but dangerous," said Howard Pyle, NSC president. "It must be offset with a great patience and a constant regard for the safety and welfare of everyone on our streets and highways."

The record traffic and over-all toll for a three-day Christmas holiday was set in 1955. Traffic took 609 lives, fires 68 and miscellaneous causes 105 for a total of 782.

Six persons were killed Monday night in one of the worst highway tragedies when two cars crashed on a darkened desert road near Boron, in Southern California. Four others died in a head-on collision near Fairview, Kan.

For comparative purposes, the Associated Press made a survey of violent deaths for a 78-hour non-holiday period, from 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 9, to midnight Dec. 12. It showed 233 traffic deaths, 47 by fires and 113 in the miscellaneous bracket, the large last figure being attributed to storms in the eastern half of the country.

Arrival Of Ship's Stern Is Delayed

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The arrival time of the stern section of the storm-broken American tanker Pine Ridge was delayed again Monday.

Capt. J. A. Williamson, skipper of the tug Lamberts Point, told a Newport News radio station—WGH—by radio telephone he does not expect to bring the stern to the Newport News shipyards until 7 a.m. Tuesday.

Williamson said he received "hold" orders not to bring the stern in before 7 a.m. even if he arrives in Hampton Roads earlier. Questioned about Christmas at sea, Williamson said, "The men on my tug had the traditional big turkey dinner, but otherwise the day was observed like any other working day."

He said he had not been aboard the stern section, but said a portable radio had been placed aboard the hulk so the tug could communicate with Chief Engineer John Richard of Wilmington, Del. Williamson said Richard and the chief salvage officer of Merrick, Chapman & Scott said they have steam heat and electricity. He surmised they could cook, and, "I imagine for Christmas dinner they fared about as well as we did."

Richard is one of 29 crewmen who survived when the Pine Ridge broke in two in heavy seas last Wednesday 100 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N.C. The other 28 were lifted from the stern section Thursday by helicopters from the aircraft carrier Valley Forge and reached shore Friday.

Seven crew members, including Capt. Clark Snyder, 44, of Haver-town, Pa., are missing and presumed dead.

Red China's Scientific Gains Termed Impressive

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Communist China is making efficient use of science in her bid for top-rank position among nations, Western scientists reported Monday.

A dozen experts spelled out China's progress in science and technology in the 10 years since the Communists came to power. And, generally, they found it impressive.

In another 10 years, some said, Chinese scientists in several fields could rank with the best in the Western world.

China is approaching the United States in coal production, having expanded her output six to sevenfold, said Dr. Kung-ping Wang, Far East specialist of the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

In iron and steel production, hiked six-fold, China may become the world's third largest producer by 1970, he added.

Huge Gains From 20 geologists in 1950, China now reports having 21,000 geological workers, and has announced many large new mineral discoveries, said Edward C. T. Chao of the U.S. Geological Survey in Washington.

Chemistry has been stressed as one wheel to propel the long-slumbering country of 600 million into a first-class power, said Dr. Arthur Yu of Thiokol Chemical Corp., Trenton, N.J.

In one phase of biochemical research, he added, Chinese scientists are studying human food needs and life processes at high altitudes.

"But whether this has anything to do with putting a man up in a satellite, I do not know," he told a symposium on China at first-day sessions of the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Theoretical Work In nuclear physics—pathway to atomic energy or bombs—Chinese scientists appear engaged mainly in theoretical work rather than experiments, said Dr. Robert T. Beyer of Brown University in Providence, presenting data gathered by Dr. Ta-you Wu of the National Research Council, Ottawa, Canada.

China has at least one atomic reactor, at an undisclosed location, Dr. Beyer said. It was presumably built with Soviet aid.

Ice Preventive's Use Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force has approved the use of a new chemical additive to prevent ice from forming in aircraft jet fuel systems.

It is approved for immediate use by the Strategic Air Command and possibly by other commands at a later date.

The additive, developed by Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla., is called PFA 55MB. It may also be used in those guided missiles that burn jet fuels.

An Air Force study in 1958, following the mysterious crash of a $5.5-million B52 jet bomber in South Dakota, estimated that almost 40 jet planes had been lost because of fuel icing.

Currently, military and commercial jets seek to prevent fuel icing by the use of heaters.

It marked the first time since 1937 the magazine has chosen more than one person for leaving an indelible mark on the news during the year. Gen. and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek shared the "Man of the Year" cover then.

Sunshine Warms Much Of The East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Snow flurries and colder air pushed across the Midwest Monday and headed toward northern New England.

Colder readings overspread much of the Mississippi Valley Monday night and were expected in most of the Atlantic states Tuesday. Most noon temperatures were below freezing in the area with a low of one above zero reported at Grand Forks, N.D.

Sunshine warmed much of the eastern seaboard and the nation's southern sections, pushing readings to 73 in Miami, 67 in Los Angeles. Temperatures in the 40s and 50s were common.

Moist air flowing from the Pacific brought intermittent rain to the Washington and Oregon coastal regions, changing to snow in mountain areas. Scattered snow also was reported in northern and central areas of the Rockies.

Occasional rain or drizzle also fell from the Ohio Valley into the southern Appalachians.

Readings were in the 20s and 30s in the northern Rockies, in the 40s and 50s along the West Coast from San Francisco north, and below freezing in the northern Plains states. In the Atlantic states, temperatures ranged from the 30s in New England to the 50s in the Carolinas.

Refuse To Halt General Strike

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—An acting provincial governor and 102 Socialist mayors refused Monday to carry out new government measures aimed at smashing a 6-day-old general strike protesting Belgium's planned austerity program.

Rene Thone, Socialist member of the Hainaut Province government and acting governor, refused to accept a decree enabling governors to call out the army to maintain order.

Hainaut is one of the hardest-hit by the strike. Officials said Jean Roland, Interior Ministry director-general, will replace Thone as acting governor.

JFK Seeks Ways To Boost State, Space Programs

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy took a long, searching look Monday for ways to strengthen the U.S. space program and the operations of the State Department abroad.

Separate conferences originally scheduled with key consultants on these two topics were combined into one. It went on for hours at Kennedy's seaside villa, with some interruptions. No conclusions or details were disclosed.

Kennedy contends the space program has been lagging. Rival civilian and military roles in this field were up for discussion.

As one means of providing improved diplomatic representation overseas, associates say Kennedy favors larger expense allowances for ambassadors. They frequently have to go deep into their own pockets to provide entertainment and a show of American hospitality. This has led to criticism that only wealthy men can be picked for major diplomatic assignments. Kennedy is particularly aware of the issue because his own father is a former ambassador to Great Britain.

Booze Allowance One of Kennedy's consultants was Rep. John Rooney, D-N.Y., As chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee handling State Department funds, he has been for years an unrelenting foe of increases in what he calls booze allowances.

Sitting in on the conference, too, were Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson, Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., and Douglas Dillon, who will be secretary of the Treasury in the Kennedy administration.

This lineup represented a considerable intertwining of interests—Johnson and Kerr in the space field; Johnson, Rooney and Dillon in the area of State Department finances.

Johnson is chairman of the Senate subcommittee concerned with State Department funds and Dillon still is undersecretary of state in the present administration.

Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, would say only that the discussions centered on "strengthening of the American space program and the subject of strengthening the State Department, particularly its representation abroad." He dodged questions as to whether expense funds for ambassadors came up.

These funds are a particular problem in such major embassies as those in London, Paris and Rome.

The consultants all had lunch together. Kennedy, Johnson and Dillon played an abbreviated round of golf in the afternoon. And then the conference resumed.

Johnson, Kerr and Rooney arranged to stay on at a Palm Beach hotel overnight.

During the day, Kennedy decided that he will head north from Florida Jan. 4 or 5 to set up in New York his primary base of operations. He will operate principally from New York, Salinger said, from the time of his arrival until his Jan. 20 inauguration.

Kennedy is figuring on occasional trips to Washington and some weekends in Palm Beach during this interval.

Asked the reason for the contemplated shift of headquarters to the Carlyle Hotel in New York, Kennedy press secretary Pierre Salinger said merely that, "It's a convenient place for him to operate."

He recalled that President Eisenhower spent considerable time in New York prior to his own inauguration.

Johnson has been tapped by Kennedy to take the chairmanship of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, now headed by Eisenhower. Kennedy views this as a post that should be built up to one of pre-eminent importance.

Kerr will succeed Johnson as chairman of the Senate Space Committee. Arguments have run on for years over how or whether responsibility for the space program should be divided between the Pentagon and the civilian National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

It is Eisenhower's position that the peaceful pursuit of the conquest of space should be left to NASA. Accordingly, he took away the Army's rocket research staff last year and shifted it to NASA.

The Air Force reportedly wants to edge into NASA's domain in the developing of huge booster rockets and putting a man into space, on grounds that warfare of the future may be fought largely in the outer reaches.

Parents In Church As Fire Rips Home, Five Children Die

FEASTERVILLE, Pa. (AP)—It was a small fire, burning out a portion of the basement and kitchen.

The trimmed Christmas tree in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. DuPont was not touched.

And Fire Marshal Fred K. Hibbs said damage to the 1½ story bungalow was about $4,800.

But for the DuPonts, the fire in their home as they attended a midnight Christmas Mass was a tragedy that will stay with them through all their Christmases.

Dense, choking smoke, heat and lack of oxygen suffocated five of the six DuPont children. They were left alone while the parents went to the Church of the Assumption of the Blessed Mary.

Fire sirens could be heard in the church during the service. But they had no special meaning for the DuPonts until the Rev. Leo E. Gatens quickly summoned them from their pew.

Investigators said Monday that an unidentified combustible material stored over a hot air pipe apparently was set afire by heat from the basement oil furnace.

Fire Chief Robert Price said the flames spread through joists in the ceiling of the basement recreation room and flared up a stairwell to the kitchen.

Four of the children—Margaret, 12, Katherine, 10, Melaine, 8, and Helen, 6—were in first floor bedrooms. Robert, 5, was taken down a ladder from the upper floor by neighbors. He couldn't be revived.

Another child, Laurie, 11, also was taken down the ladder by neighbors and then was held until Monday at Holy Redeemer Hospital in Meadowbrook. She was not hurt.

Her mother, Margaret, 35, stayed by her side at the hospital. The mother was put under sedation.

The Christmas presents, brightly and neatly wrapped, lay untouched in the living room of the scarred home.

Tuesday the bodies of the children will be flown to the family's home town of Holyoke, Mass., where funeral services will be held Thursday.

Gen. MacArthur Okays Bid For Memorial At Norfolk

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur has accepted an invitation from Norfolk to place his war mementoes, decorations and papers in a MacArthur memorial this naval city will establish.

MacArthur has various ties with Norfolk. His mother was born and married here and he became the city's first honorary citizen.

The invitation was extended last month. The general of the Army said he accepted it as a great honor.

MacArthur also requested that he and his wife be buried in Norfolk, which houses the world's largest Navy base.

The city said Monday it will renovate its 111-year-old courthouse—soon to be vacated—at a cost of nearly half a million dollars. Other tentative plans call for landscaping the courthouse block and renaming it "MacArthur Square."

Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney (ret.), MacArthur's long-time friend and biographer who served as his chief of staff during the final 18 years of his Army career, is donating his services to the city in assisting with the renovation of the building and preparing the items for shipment.

MacArthur told Norfolk city officials: "As a Virginian myself, whose mother came from a long line of Virginians and whose mother and father were married in the present City of Norfolk, I accept as a great honor the invitation of the city to place my papers, decorations and other mementoes of my military service in its perpetual care and keeping."

Mayor W. Fred Duckworth termed MacArthur's decision "the greatest honor ever conferred on our city." Judge W. L. Parker, president of the board of the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences, is preparing a deed of trust to accept the MacArthur memorabilia for the people of the nation.

The city hopes to have Whitney supervise the cataloging and proper display of the material. It includes nearly 150 chests of papers, correspondence, battle plans and communications, 123 American and foreign decorations, battle trophies, gifts from world leaders and uniforms—including such personal emblems as his special hat, dark glasses and cigarette pipe.

State Legislature Passed Only Three Bills In 1960

Kennedy Junior Gains One Pound

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — John F. Kennedy Jr. has gained about a pound since he came to Florida, and evidently he is doing quite well, thank you.

The son of the president-elect was a month old Christmas Day. He received presents from all over the country—clothes, dolls and toys. A photographer aware of the Kennedy clan's liking for football passed along a miniature football with the baby's name inscribed in gold.

The junior Kennedy was born prematurely by Caesarean section Nov. 25. He weighed 6 pounds, 3 ounces, dropped some of that as babies do, and had just about regained the loss when Kennedy brought his wife and son to Palm Beach two weeks ago.

Now the young man weighs in at 7 pounds, 5 ounces.

time, money and expense funds, the searcher claimed.

Harry said that this 1960 State Legislature "spent more time doing less work than any other session in Pennsylvania history."

I told Newhawk to check on this statement. It seemed rather startling to me. Harry is a good boy, and seldom makes mistakes but since he had so much time over the holidays, I got him busy on this project.

I told Harry that the legislators are public servants and that to establish a record doing nothing is a serious charge.

"You must remember," I told Newhawk, that anybody in this country can do nothing if they want. But to set a record, they must have done something. They surely must have worked over time in order not to get mixed up into some sort of business.

"It's true, boss," Harry reported. They had one big heck of a holiday. "The records show they passed three bills . . . and ah, these were only changes in appropriations passed by the previous legislature," he quoted.

Harry is a good boy. He gets all excited when he has something important to report.

"They convened on Jan. 5 worked on these three bills and adjourned in November. Larry (Gov. Lawrence) signed the three bills with a month, boss, 'th eagle-eyed cub reporter continued 'From February on, it was a waste of taxpayers' money,' Newhawk quoted as a direct statement by one of the legislators. Stroudsburg VOR Station Probed In Air Disaster

THE POSSIBILITY that Stroudsburg's Visual Omni Range station may have confused one of the airliners which crashed in the air over New York City two weeks ago is being investigated as a theory.

The possibility being probed is that the United Air Lines DC18 involved in the crash may momentarily have mistaken the radio station here for the radio at Solberg, N. J.

The local station, operated by the Federal Aviation Agency, is located about 1,000 feet off Route

Two Persons Injured On Route 209

TWO PERSONS were injured in two accidents occurring within 10 minutes of each other on Route 209 about 11 miles northeast of East Stroudsburg yesterday afternoon.

State Police of the local barracks said cars driven by Cecile Dreiband, 51, of 80 Theresa Pl., Staten Island, N.Y.; Joan Dippre, 26, of 68 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg, and Albert W. Miner, 58, of 39 Newell St., Pittsfield, Mass., were involved in the first crash at 3 p.m.

Troopers said the Dreiband car hit an icy spot on the road and began to spin; the Dippre vehicle tried to pass the Dreiband vehicle and sideswiped it and the Miner car, approaching from the rear, attempted to stop, but was unable to do so and also hit the Dreiband car.

No one was injured, but damages to the three vehicles were estimated at $1,150.

Approximately 10 minutes later, troopers said, a car driven by Earl Arnold, 24, of 135 Carbondale Rd., Waymart, approached the scene. They said Arnold applied his brakes and skidded into a snowbank, coming out facing the opposite direction.

Investigators said a car driven by Allan F. Mensinger, 58, of 20 W. North St., Stamford, Conn., slid on the ice and struck the Arnold car.

Arnold and his wife, Judith Ann, 19, complained of whip lash injuries to the neck. Mensinger's wife, Lucille, 59, was treated for shock. Damage to both cars was $1,800.

Three Hurt As Car Hits Cinder Truck

THREE persons were injured in the collision of a car and a Pennsylvania Dept. of Highways cinder truck on Route 611, two and one-half miles north of Stroudsburg, at 5:45 p.m. yesterday.

State Police of the local barracks identified the drivers as George C. Henry, 37, Youngwood Dr., East Stroudsburg, RD 3, driving the truck, and A. V. Wasmuck, 29, Box 158, Veterans Administration Hospital, Lyons, N. J.

Wasmuck and his wife, Mary, 30, were admitted to Monroe County General Hospital. The hospital last night declined to give their injuries or condition, but a State Police spokesman said Wasmuck suffered a possible concussion and his wife was severely injured. Their 13-month-old daughter, Catherine, was not hurt.

The third person injured was Frederick Beaver, Jr., 22, of 172 Spring St., East Stroudsburg, who was standing on the rear of the truck when it was hit.

Troopers said Beaver was knocked from the truck, but the impact also loosened a quantity of cinders and he fell on them. He suffered bruises and abrasions.

Teachers To Request Increase In Salaries

HARRISBURG (AP)—A legislative proposal for salary increases costing some $16.5 million per year is expected to be approved here this week at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

In addition, the group is expected to ask for a raise of almost $100 million per year in the state subsidies to school districts.

Both proposals were included in the report of the group's legislative committee. Similar requests were made to the 1959 legislature but were unsuccessful.

The committee's report was printed in preparation for the PSEA's 108th convention. The three-day meeting of the group, which represents 61,000 of the state's 80,000 public school teachers, begins Tuesday night.

The PSEA pay plan calls for automatic annual pay raises of $300 for seven years for teachers with a standard teachers certificate. Teachers with a bachelor's degree would get the annual boosts for nine years and those with master's degrees would continue receiving the increments for 11 years.

The subsidy increase proposal calls for state aid to be figured on the basis of $9,000 per teaching unit instead of the present maximum of $5,800.

Other legislative proposals to be submitted to the convention delegates include:

A $300 million increase each year for the next three years in the ceiling of the state subsidized school construction program.

An increase in reimbursable construction costs from $1,100 to $1,200 per pupil for elementary schools and from $1,700 to $2,000 for each secondary student.

Liberalized teacher pension benefits.

Increased salaries and legislative civil service for department of public instruction employees.

Local Artist's Works Saved

A FIRE which caused approximately $200,000 damage to the library at Bucknell University Saturday had at least one local artist worried for a time.

Mrs. Dorothy Strauser, 150 Anomink St., East Stroudsburg, had on display in the Ellen Clarke Bertrand Library about 30 cloth wall hangings, designed and executed in a hooked rug technique.

When first word of the fire reached here, it was reported all had been lost. Later it was determined that all of them had been saved.

Mrs. Strauser's hangings were on display in conjunction with an art exhibition loaned to the university by Andrew J. Sordani, an industrialist and trustee of Bucknell.

In addition, from her collection of antique toys, she had on exhibition the models which inspired the motifs for the rugs and several old wood carvings.

The fire started shortly before noon, destroying the roof and a white tower, which was a campus landmark.

Missed Building
The flames apparently did not enter the building itself. A concrete ceiling above the third floor prevented the burning roof, which had fallen inside, from igniting the rooms below.

University officials said there was some water damage to books and furnishings.

Five Autos Damaged In Accident

FIVE CARS were involved in an accident yesterday at 2:40 p.m. as they traveled north on Route 611, just inside the Stroudsburg Borough line on Foxtown Hill.

Police identified the drivers as Dr. Emil Solts, 48, of Freehold; James Mackey, 35, Woodbridge, N. J.; John Wozniak, Wilkes-Barre; Joseph Riley, 54, Columbia, N.J.; and Martin H. Staab, 30, Montoursville.

Two people were injured: Mrs. Staab, who had a broken arm, prior to the accident, suffered a second fracture of the same arm, and Mrs. Grace Wozniak received a cut knee.

Police said the accident happened when one car hit an icy spot on the highway and spun around hitting a snow bank. The other drivers attempted to slow down or stop their cars.

Three of the cars collided. One hit a snow bank and one ran into a snow bank on the south side of the highway.

Police estimated the total damage at $800.

Sizable Boom For U.S. Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. economy is already heading into a broad advance that will produce a sizable boom within a year's time, Fortune magazine said Monday.

The magazine said its economists expect that in the next 18 months the gross national product (dollar value of all goods and services) will rise 8 per cent from its recent rate of $505 billion to $545 billion.

Sideswiping Car Sought By Police

STATE Police from Stroudsburg Barracks are on the look out for a green sedan that hit the car of H. G. Wade, 56, of Columbia, N.J., as he traveled north on Route 611, Foxtown Hill Sunday at 11:15 p.m.

Wade told the police both he and the car that struck his left front door were traveling north on Foxtown Hill when the unidentified vehicle passed him.

Slight Damage

Police said the damage to the Prinz, driven by Wade, were small. They will continue the investigation today.

Minority Rights

While calling loudly for civil rights legislation to protect racial minorities, the liberal majority in Congress shows signs of getting ready to strike a quick blow against the rights of all minorities. It is said to be devising rules limiting debate in the Senate.

Unlimited debate as it presently exists in the Senate is the rule that permits a filibuster. The filibuster itself has a bad name, but it has a useful purpose.

It is the traditional and almost only defense of a Senate minority against having its rights trampled ruthlessly by the will of the majority.

A filibuster can be stopped by a two-thirds vote of senators present. But a two-thirds vote is hard to get.

Each senator knows that someday he may be in a minority and may need the protection of the filibuster in an issue of overwhelming importance to the people of his state.

The liberals probably will try to put through a rule to allow cutting off debate by a simple majority vote.

Under such an arrangement the Senate would become nothing more than a rubber stamp for whatever is favored by the political party which has a majority.

It will be a sad day for all of us when the Senate of the United States becomes a rubber stamp for anybody.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Dividing The Tax Areas

Thirty-three of the 50 American states levy a general sales tax. Kentucky became the latest addition to this list by action of its Legislature this year. Indiana collects a gross receipts tax, which is similar in effect.

In nearly all cases the rate is 2 or 3 per cent, but Michigan last month voted a constitutional amendment to authorize an increase to 4 per cent, the same as Pennsylvania levies.

A number of cities and counties in New York State, including New York City, under permission by the Legislature impose a local sales tax. Now a special commission on economic expansion appointed by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has included in its report a recommendation that this tax be made statewide, with the proceeds to go to local government.

When the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution was ratified in 1913 authorizing a graduated income tax it gave the federal government the most effective source of revenue in the United States. This has been a factor in the extension of federal powers through dependence on federal aid.

With a recognition that state graduated income tax laws tend to become duplicative and prohibitory, the recent tendency has been to reduce these. But costs of state and local governments have been going up; their budgets more than doubled during the 1950's.

Hence they are in need of dependable revenues beyond the possibilities of ad valorem property taxes, though those can be improved.

The sales tax seems the most logical area left for financing state government. There are objections that it is regressive, bearing most heavily on those of low incomes.

But in view of a relatively broad and even distribution of earning power and of the steepness of federal income tax rates, the popularity of state sales taxes is understandable.

Reports From Congress

Water Shortages

Washington — The United States must inaugurate a comprehensive, nationwide water development program if it is to ward off impending water shortages which could cripple the Nation.

This is the concerted view of conservationists and water experts throughout the country. They have long urged upon Congress parts of such a program—but without success.

The extent to which the Federal Government should become financially involved in water conservation and development programs has long been a point of controversy, not only between Administrations and Congress, but between numerous factions throughout the country.

President Eisenhower has said that such programs, to the greatest extent possible, should be undertaken by the states rather than the Federal Government. President-designate John F. Kennedy during his campaign indicated he would go further than Mr. Eisenhower in requesting federal funds for water development programs.

A national water development program, its advocates say, is necessary in order to harness properly the vast supply of water in the country, most of which escapes use and falls into the endless cycles of rainfall-evaporation-condensation-rainfall.

If there were a national program, proponents argue, the 30 inches of rain which fall on the United States each year would be more than enough to meet the Nation's demands for years to come. As it is, only three is put to use and the country is on the verge of a fantastic water crisis which could dry up whole areas, and leave water in other areas impossible for use because of man-made pollution.

Congress and Water — Congress has struggled with the water problem for years. Although it has not considered seriously any national water development program, it has been responsible for a number of highly useful and effective regional development programs, such as the Tennessee Valley Authority.

In 1960 Congress passed three major water bills, one of which was vetoed, extending the federal role in water development programs. Also in 1960, the Senate Select Committee on National Water Resources neared the end of its two-year study into the Nation's water resources and the problems involved in their proper development.

The first of the major bills authorized the Interior Department, either by itself or on a cost-sharing basis with the state of California, to construct the San Luis unit (a dam and reservoir) of the federal Central Valley Reclamation project in California.

The second was the omnibus flood control bill which authorized $1.4 billion for approximately 130 navigation, flood control and river development projects. Another bill would have increased the authorization for federal grants to communities for sewage plant construction from $50 million to $90 million a year for 10 years. President Eisenhower vetoed it.

Prospects — Experts generally agree on the necessity of basing future water development programs on the multi-purpose dam. Sen Robert S. Kerr (D, Okla.), chairman of the Senate Select Committee, has said that the multi-purpose dam is the pillar of the American water development program.

Dr. Edward A. Ackerman, a leading water expert who prepared a report on multi-purpose water development for the Committee, said the multi-purpose surface reservoir is the basic unit in the development of integrated multi-purpose water conservation programs. He also said the primary objective of all federal water conservation activity should be an integrated basin-wide regulation system where it was appropriate for the Federal Government to enter into the program.

How the incoming Administration of President-designate Kennedy will approach this concept remains to be seen. However, there are indications that he will urge a much stronger federal role in water development programs than did President Eisenhower.

During the campaign, for instance, Mr. Kennedy made the following proposals: formulation of a comprehensive river development program; development of a program to help local communities deal with their water pollution problems; an expanded program of federal assistance for the improvement of watersheds; and reversal of the Eisenhower "no-new-starts" policy on water conservation projects.

Perhaps the attitude of the Kennedy Administration toward conserving and developing the Nation's precious water supply can best be summarized by this statement made during the campaign: The Nation needs "more imaginative and creative thinking, more long-range planning, more decisive and responsible public resource conservation."

The Pennsylvania Story

Preening Binge

By MASON DENISON
Harrisburg — Holiday season notwithstanding — the feather-preening season is just around the corner for Pennsylvania's brood of 260 lawmakers.

On the other hand, it would perhaps be more accurate to say that "a goodly portion" of Pennsylvania's locally-elected lawmakers brethren will be on the preening binge.

For some it will be a case of soothing ruffled feathers! What is this "preening" all about?

Well, the new 1961 Legislature convenes Tuesday, Jan. 3 and shortly thereafter legislative leaders in both the House and Senate will announce memberships on the various and sundry committees in both chambers.

Now offhand perhaps, this committee stuff might seem to be a rather curious event; nothing worth howling about; just a "committee" and all that sort of thing.

Perhaps to the layman; the constituent back home, this may well be the reaction to a committee appointment—but not to lawmakers!

This committee membership is big medicine. To lawmakers it is a show of some sort of strength, and to many it is designed to "snow under" the folks back home with the individual lawmaker's importance on Capitol Hill.

For example, look to your local lawmaker's stationery after the committee appointments have been formally announced. In the upper right-hand corner of the letterhead you'll see a line of type that says simply: "Committees."

Under this heading will be the names of the committees to which the individual lawmaker has been named, i.e.—Fisheries, Appropriations, Labor Relations, etc.

This is the sort of thing old pro lawmakers like. It looks good on their letterhead. A committee chairmanship of course is that much more "choice."

If a lawmaker is making a speech back home, almost inevitably his biographical sketch will contain these committee appointments—along with anything else relevant to these "committees."

The number of committees to which a lawmaker is assigned and the "ranking importance" of the committees themselves is determined in large degree by the "seniority" the member concerned enjoys. Depending upon circumstances lawmakers may request and be assigned to specific committees of their preference.

Of course committee preference and chairmanships are assigned by the party in control of that particular chamber—thus the heavy political factor that really is the prime determining point.

For example, the upcoming 1961 session will see all committee chairmanships in the House of Representatives going to Democrats for the simple reason that they are in control of the lower chamber 110-100—just as administration Democrats controlled the House in 1959 and this year's 1960 session.

On the other hand there will be some heavy shifting in the Senate where long entrenched Republicans have been dethroned for the first time since 1937. Staunch old committee memberships and chairmanships in that chamber historically held by Republicans will fall by the wayside.

Administration Democrats are taking over control — which means feather preening will be heavy on the donkey rider side in that chamber while followers of the elephantine trail will be soothing ruffled feathers. The letterheads will tell the story.

Off The Record

It was the night after Christmas and the children were in bed. But the house looked like it was hit by Santa's sled. A doll was tossed here and there and Mother was scowling in despair.

Perhaps the kids didn't understand that the older folks were doing in. However, the deed was recorded despite the publicity good will toward men.

It was a hectic two days for mom and dad. There was a chance recuperation would come and things wouldn't look so bad.

There it was though, the place in disorder. Something had to be done to return it to order.

It was Mother who did most of the work, while Daddy stretched out and joked. After all it was Father's day to rest while Mom is always supposed to do her best.

Naturally there were arguments, pro and con, denouncing the children for their unconscious wrong. Daddy, who still wasn't working, upheld the antics, while tired Mother felt the other way around.

But it was the Christmas season and all came out right with Daddy the fresh one and Mother, tired, but bright.

Next year we plan to have Jocelyn skate on a rink, and Shelley hauling her doll of pink along with Erin, the little one, dressed in pink.

Maybe we went about it in a way that hampered Santa Claus' sleigh. However, if we had to do it over again we wouldn't change because Dasher and Prancer only have that one day.

There will be many memories of 1960. Some that are good and a few that are bad. But the 24 hours foremost in our mind will be the day after Christmas when not everyone was so kind.

Veteran's Guide

Q. I get two benefits: my monthly training allowance, and compensation for a service-connected disability. Am I expected to report either of these when I file my Federal income tax report for 1960?

A. No. Veterans' benefits are tax free. Interest on GI insurance dividends left with VA on deposit, however, should be reported.

Q. I'm a Korea veteran, holding GI term insurance. I understand, by a recent law, I now can convert it to a permanent plan. Is this so?

A. Yes. Korea veterans holding term insurance policies with the letters "RS" before their policy numbers may either convert to permanent plan insurance or exchange for a term policy costing one-third as much.

Q. Is it possible for a disabled "peacetime" veteran to draw VA compensation at wartime rates?

A. Yes — if the disability resulted from extra-hazardous service, as, for example, participation in simulated warfare, the veteran may be eligible for compensation at wartime rates.

Missile Tests Slated

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The Nike-Zeus, the anti-missile missile the Army is developing as the answer to the devar, a clear-armed 18,000 mph ballistic missile, is now slated for crucial show-down tests in the Pacific soon after the New Year.

For the first time, a complete three-stage Nike-Zeus, with its highly complex radar tracking and control system, will be fired from the Point Mugu, Calif., range.

If this series of crucial trials, extending over months, is successful, it will be climaxed in the summer with an actual test between a nuclear-armed Nike-Zeus and an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile armed with a nuclear warhead.

The Army's anti-missile missile will be hurled from Kwajalein Island, between Hawaii and the Philippines, against the Air Force's ICBM fired from the West Coast.

Purpose of this momentous experiment is to determine whether the Nike-Zeus can intercept the 18,000 mph Atlas and knock it out of the air — without detonating its cataclysmic nuclear warhead.

Computer and other tests, at the Nevada and White Sands, N. M., proving grounds, have indicated that is feasible.

These experiments will also demonstrate whether the anti-missile missile's extraordinary "radar brain" can actually differentiate between devastating ballistic missiles and decoys.

Such a breakthrough in anti-missile development would be as fabulous as the creation of the Atlas' nose cone that is capable of withstanding immense frictional heat in traversing the atmosphere and delivering the nuclear warhead.

Working on this brain wracking problem are Army, Western Electric Co., and Bell Telephone Laboratory scientists. Western Electric is the Nike-Zeus' prime contractor; Bell Telephone is in charge of research and design.

How It Works — The forthcoming series of Pacific shots will also largely determine whether the Army gets the additional $300 million it wants to begin assembly-line production of its anti-missile missile for operational use by 1962 — about a year ahead of schedule.

President Eisenhower's budget, which he will submit to the new Congress that convenes next week, will propose $280 million for continued Nike-Zeus "research and development." That's approximately the same as the $274 million granted this year.

The President's budget contains no funds for Nike-Zeus production.

He and Defense Secretary Gates turned that down on the ground the anti-missile missile is still an unproven weapon. They were supported on this by Herbert York, director of Defense research and engineering, and George B. Kistiakowsky, the President's special science adviser.

But Lieutenant General Arthur Trudeau, chief of Army research, contends an early start on Nike-Zeus production is urgent because Russia is definitely known to be far advanced on such a weapon.

The decision on this backstage issue will be up to President-elect Kennedy. He will have the determining voice after taking office on January 20.

In anticipation of that, General Trudeau is preparing a detailed presentation on the pressing need to get Nike-Zeus production underway without further delay. That will be submitted to both Kennedy and incoming Defense Secretary Robert McNamara.

Work has already begun on Kwajalein Island for next summer's momentous test between a nuclear-armed Nike-Zeus and an Atlas ballistic missile carrying a nuclear warhead.

This experiment will function as follows: Detection of the Atlas' nuclear warhead will be made by a broad-beamed acquisition radar capable of scanning vast areas of space. When the target is spotted, needle-beamed tracking radar takes over automatically supplying continuous data to computers that will determine the precise intercept point.

This system will automatically fire the Nike-Zeus when the ICBM warhead is some 800 miles from Kwajalein.

At the right moment, a burst order is transmitted to the nuclear warhead of the anti-missile missile which will, thereupon, intercept the onrushing Atlas warhead and knock it out of the air 200 to 500 miles from Kwajalein.

In doing that, the Atlas warhead will not be exploded. It is to be recovered intact from the Pacific.

Fallout — Defense research director York is eager to hold on to that job until July, when he plans to return to California to become head of a college. President-elect Kennedy and his Defense Secretary McNamara are still undecided about reappointing York. . . . Defense Secretary Gates has released to the Army all but $40 million of the $274 million Congress voted this year for the Nike-Zeus — over White House opposition. Army authorities are planning to ask President-elect Kennedy for the is being tested on Ascension Island, in the South Atlantic, to track missiles launched from the Cape Canaveral, Fla., center.

About Town

—By Gene Brown

Walking on air: "What's the matter?" a commuter asked his despondent friend next to him. "Well, two weeks ago my uncle died suddenly," was the answer.

"Were you very close?" "No, we weren't, but he left me $100,000."

"Then why are you so sad?" the friend asked. "Last week my aunt died, too."

"She was the one you were fond of?"

"No, I hardly knew her, but she left me a quarter million."

"Then what are you so unhappy about?"

"Today's Friday," came the reply, "and so far this week—nothing!"

About Town

—By Gene Brown

Earth tremors were felt in various points of Monroe County. Some of the tremors lasted for more than a half hour.

The Soviet Armies were rushing to the Hungarian border as German troops rolled into Hungary.

How many* remember in 1935 when the state department of internal affairs approved a $122,000 bond issue for improvement to the Barrett Township School?

Traffic in Monroe County was slowed down to a reported 10 miles per hour. The entire county was covered by a heavy fog.

Stroudsburg Fire Department extinguished a fire in the home of Milo Kresge on N. Sixth St. The chair was the only damage to the house and the cause of the fire was said to be a lighted cigarette that had fallen on the chair.

Route 611 from Stroudsburg to Mount Pocono was very slippery. State Police warned motorists to be exceptionally careful when traveling. The slippery condition was the result of a new snowfall overnight.

The Monroe County Bowling Tournament opened today in the Pocono Bowling Center.

JFK's Win Tops State's Best Stories

By LOUIS UCHITELLE
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John F. Kennedy's election victory in Pennsylvania was the best Pennsylvania story of 1960, the state's editors decided in the annual Associated Press poll.

Highway safety, baseball and labor strikes also did well in the voting on the top 10 stories of the year.

The editors thought Gov. David L. Lawrence's new highway safety program, which calls for periodic physical examinations of all drivers, was the second best story.

It was the only one among the first five which was not also a top national story.

Pirates 3rd
For third place, the editors turned to the Pittsburgh Pirates and their first National League pennant since 1925, not to mention a World Series crown.

The Pennsylvania Railroad strike and the steel strike settlement placed fourth and fifth, respectively. Both centered on Pennsylvania, but affected the entire nation.

The steel strike was voted the No. 1 Pennsylvania story of 1960. It started in July of that year.

Each AP member newspaper and radio and television station had one vote. Here's the other top 10 stories they chose:

(6) Winter weather in February closes the Pennsylvania Turnpike; (7) Daniel Raymond kills four, wounds five near Uniontown; (8) Pennsylvania census returns; (9) First annual session of the Legislature, and (10) a tie between the Knox Coal Co. labor bribery and manslaughter trials and the arrest and trial of Elmo Smith for the slaying of Maryann Mitchell.

Kennedy won Pennsylvania by 116,362 votes and collected 32 electoral votes essential for national victory. The total presidential vote of 5,006,541 was a record for Pennsylvania. Kennedy received the most votes ever amassed in the state by a Democratic presidential candidate.

Governor Lawrence announced his 13-point highway safety program on Feb. 2 and physical examinations of motorists began before the year was over. Generally, the plan is to examine every licensed motorist once every 10 years until the age of 60, and every five years after that.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, so long second-class citizens of the National League, were in first place most of the season and excitement ran high once they clinched the pennant. The World Series with the New York Yankees was one of the most exciting in baseball history. It went to a seventh and decisive game, which Pittsburgh won. But the Blues first blew a four-run lead, then came back with five runs in the eighth and Bill Mazeroski's tie-breaking homer in the ninth.

Pittsburgh celebrated wildly into the night. On Sept. 1, the Pennsylvania Railroad—the nation's largest—was struck by 20,000 non-operating employees. It had to shut down entirely for the first time in its 114-year history.

The strike idled all but 2,000 of the PRR's 74,000 employees in 13 states from the east coast to St. Louis. Many more in industries served by the railroad were furloughed as the days passed. Finally, an agreement was reached in Philadelphia and the railroad re-opened on Sept. 13.

The strike was by members of the Transport Workers Union and the System Federation, two unions which represent maintenance employes. The issues were job conditions and job security, not wages.

Ended Jan. 4
The 116-day steel strike by the United Steelworkers Union ended officially on Jan. 4 when the union and the basic steel producers signed a 30-month contract. Actually, the employees had returned to work nearly two months before under a Taft-Hartley injunction which was challenged in the courts. Until the settlement there was concern that the injunction might expire without a contract and the strike might resume.

It was well into the year before the effects of the strike began to wear off. Many of the 500,000 strikers and 300,000 employees laid off in allied industries lived in Pennsylvania.

The weather made the top 10 stories by closing 160 miles of the Pennsylvania Turnpike for 36 hours with a February snow storm. High winds created big drifts and made it difficult to clear the superhighway, which had not yet shaken off the effects of an earlier snow. Thousands of motorists were stranded in restaurants and elsewhere along the turnpike. It was closed between Irwin and Carlisle.

One of the two major crime stories among the top 10 was the killing of four persons and the wounding of five more by a man who went wild with a rifle. He was Daniel Raymond, 42, of Chalk Hill, near Uniontown. The shooting started on Feb. 24 when Raymond asked two highway employees to spread clinders on his driveway. He shot one. The rest of the dead and wounded were people who tried to give aid or were just driving past the home. Finally Raymond was shot by state police who closed in on his home behind an Army tank.

The nation's decennial census brought Pennsylvania the news that the state's population had increased by 821,354 or 7.8 per cent since 1950. The official count of the population as of April 1 was 11,319,356 compared with 10,498,012 in 1950.

The Legislature went into annual sessions this year for the first time, under a constitutional amendment passed last year. The amendment limited sessions in even numbered years to money matters, most of which had been handled by the 1959 Legislature before the constitutional amendment was passed.

Nevertheless, the legislators stayed in session from January until Nov. 14, although they were in recess most of the time and only three bills were passed. Final adjournment was delayed by disagreements between the two political parties. Meanwhile, the state got used to the idea of a Legislature almost continuously in session instead of once every two years, as in the past.

The arrest and trial of Elmo Smith for the murder of 16-year-old Maryann Mitchell, and the Knox Coal Co. labor bribery and manslaughter trials tied for 10th spot in the balloting.

Smith, a 39-year-old Bridgeport handyman, was arrested in January for the December slaying of the Philadelphia school girl. Her body was found in a roadside gully. She had been beaten on the head and had been sexually abused. There were lipstick markings on her stomach. Smith, in a trial held in Gettysburg because of the strong feeling aroused in the Philadelphia area, was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to die.

The labor bribery and manslaughter trials stemmed from the Knox Coal Co. mine disaster of 1959 in which 12 miners were killed when the workings at Port Griffith were flooded by the Susquehanna River. It broke through its bed into the mine tunnel. In one trial at Easton, two men were convicted of involuntary manslaughter for allowing unsafe conditions which led to the disaster and another was acquitted. All three defendants, however, were convicted of conspiracy.

One of the principal defendants was August J. Lippi, 59, of Exeter, president of United Mine Workers District One, which represents about 10,000 miners in northeastern Pennsylvania. He was convicted on both counts, as was Louis Fabrizio, 61, of Yatesville, head of the defunct Knox company.

They have not been sentenced because motions are pending for a new trial.

Before the Easton trial in Northampton County Court, Lippi was tried in a federal court on a charge of violating the Taft-Hartley Law by accepting about $8,000 from Knox while representing its employees. He was convicted, but is appealing the verdict.

Just Between Us —

"Do you remember the Christmas when..." will always start a flood of reminiscences. And the funny thing is that the thing that usually separates one Christmas from a whole series of happy Christmases that sort of blend into each other, that sets one Christmas apart, is something that seemed pretty miserable at the time.

There was the childhood Christmas when we had no Christmas tree. For some reason or other there was a shortage of Christmas trees and by the time our Santa tried to get one they were all gone — every single one, everywhere, with nothing left but cut-off branches.

But our Santa — if lacking in forethought — was not lacking in ingenuity. By winding wire around the branches and around the handle of a carpet sweeper, we had a wonderful Christmas tree with the advantage that it could be lowered to a horizontal position so we could kiss the angel on the top goodnight.

There was the Christmas that Santa and I stayed up all night trying to put a knocked-down toy together from direction that must have been translated from the Russian by somebody who didn't speak English.

Although that still wasn't as frustrating as the year I dropped a very small, but very important, present down the register and we spent the rest of the night taking the furnace apart and putting it back together — hissing at each other at every clang which threatened to wake the children.

But my happiest Christmas Eve, I suppose, was the one when I got my engagement ring. Which is why I have such a vicarious joy in writing up the Christmas engagements for all of you. This year it was better than vicarious with Kay Shook's new engagement ring, casting a very special glow over our Christmas Eve gathering. Especially with all her friends so pleased with her choice of the man who goes with it.

Want to keep your layer-cake spick and span while you're frosting the cake? Put four strips of paper over edges of plate so they cover it. After the cake is frosted, pull away the paper!

When you want to slice Brazil nuts, cover the shelled nuts with cold water and simmer three minutes, then drain. You can use a swivel-blade vegetable parer to cut the nuts paper-thin.

Birthday In December Causes Needless Woe

By ANNE HEYWOOD
"Nothing can be worse than having a birthday just before Christmas," one irate reader writes. "People either give you a very nice present because they are broke from Christmas present buying and their time is limited — or they give you a present that is a combination, thus eliminating your birthday." "If I had my way, I would be born in June, because then your birthday really means something and gets the attention it deserves!"

Felt Same Way
I know exactly how she feels, because I am in that category myself. As a matter of fact, when I was 14, I decided arbitrarily to change my birthday and make it in June.

I also changed my name from Anne to Maryanne, but it never worked any more than the birthday change did.

Successful Change
However, I did make one change that made my birthday a little more significant than it usually was, and I offer this suggestion as the way to help eliminate the irritating situation.

Each birthday I write a letter addressed to myself one year hence.

Contents Of Letter
I tell myself what I hope will happen during the year ahead. I discuss how I feel at the time; what my aims and goals are; what my current interests are; who I am seeing; what I am reading; what kind of clothes I am interested in, and so forth. I end up with "A Very Happy Birthday to You for 1961" (in this case).

Then, each year, when I wake up on my birthday, I have a rather exciting time reading the letter.

Change And Grow
It is astonishing how much you change and grow from year to year and it is kind of fun for the 1960-1961 to get acquainted with the 1961-1962. It gives a feeling that a birthday is quite an interesting thing, even if De-

Bracelet Of Baby Charms Presented To Nursery Head By Associates At Hospital

The holiday period is a time for remembrance, and last night Mrs. Rachel Kemp, head nurse in the nursery at the General Hospital until last August when she suffered a heart attack, was surprised with a tribute from her associates at the hospital.

They came carolling to her home, 320 East Brown St., East Stroudsburg, bringing a gift and their own good wishes for her recovery and return to what she terms "the happiest branch of nursing."

Kemp, as she is known by many residents, joined the staff of the Monroe County General Hospital when she graduated from nursing school in 1920. She worked on night duty and helped deliver many babies. Early in 1942, she became head nurse in the nursery. From that time on, nearly every baby born in the General Hospital, including six of her own grandchildren, has had her loving care.

As a momento of the work Kemp loves so much, the nurses and doctors had a sterling silver charm bracelet made, each charm depicting a high light of her career:

A sterling caduceus to signify the medical profession; a tiny stethoscope for listening to tiny chests; a silver safety pin for the countless diapers she has pinned; a long-legged stork for bringing babies; a silver nurse's cap for her own graduation; a pair of tiny baby shoes for the number she has cared for; a silver candy box tied with red ribbon to represent the gifts some patients leave at the desk by way of saying "thank you."

In the center of the bracelet is a circle engraved "1920 Kemp 1960."

cember birthdays are generally accompanied by a dearth of celebration.

One young woman I know puts aside a certain amount of money each week—I think it is a quarter—so that on her birthday she can go out and buy herself a present that she really wants.

Only For Children
Some people think that birthdays are only for children and that it is foolish for adults to pay much attention to them. I don't feel that way, and I think that the capacity for getting on good terms with birthdays is one which stays with us and enriches our whole lives year after year.

To me nothing is more horrendous than the families who totally ignore birthdays except perhaps, for the gift of a check and a "Go buy yourself something" approach.

Emphasize Birthday
If you have a friend whose birthday falls at this time of year, pay as much attention as you can to this special occasion for him. It will be deeply appreciated.

And if you, like me, are a sufferer from this dilemma, try that double-barreled remedy. First, write yourself a "birthday letter" and second, start saving up now for the birthday present you can buy for yourself next year.

Mrs. Ace started the record player while a gift was passing about the circle. When the music stopped, the gift belonged to the person holding it. Refreshments were served.

As I write this column on the Friday before Christmas, I find myself the custodian of a dozen or more turkeys. All of them are very much frozen, and since my colleagues here at Wyckoff's mean to keep them that way, they are placed on bags... boxes... and on trays right outside of my office window on the porch.

"Now stay in your office all afternoon and keep your eyes open," I have been cautioned, "because someone could make a terrific haul by coming up the fire escape from the alley."

Someone could. But since I would like to believe that everyone is imbued with the "giving" rather than "taking" aspect of the season, I am not anticipating any such catastrophe. My biggest worry at the moment is how to keep myself from becoming a frozen chicken. With everybody running in and out, leaving the door wide open while they check up on the condition of their holiday bird, I'm sure that Christmas morning my nose will be holly berry red, and my eyes as blurry as are those one sees New Year's morning.

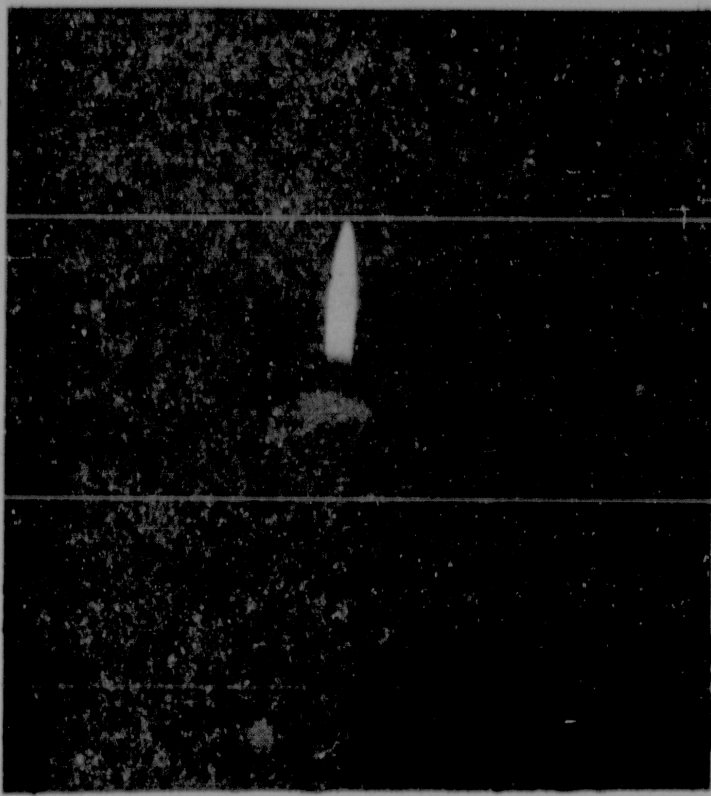

As I type there is much laughter from the lounge where the one o'clock luncheon crowd is having a party and exchanging gifts. Esther Ainspac has just been presented with an organizer for the bathroom. "An organizer... what's that?" I wanted to know, thinking for a moment it was some kind of a stop watch that permitted each member of the family just a certain number of minutes for showering... tooth cleaning... and primping.

"It's a rack to keep my lipstick in," she explained. Being a member of our cosmetic department personnel, Esther would naturally know all about such things... but I am a bit surprised to see that she's just NOW getting organized. Ever since I first knew her years and years ago, I presumed she was!

Once in a while, this column receives a snide, or, in some instances, downright vicious letter... unsigned, of course, and presumably from the same person who admits he... or she... dislikes me heartily, and that everything I write, say, or do irks him or her. (I somehow think a man would not stoop to such a letter... but I hate to think that one of my own sex would!)

In any case, one of them has arrived again... and the wishes for the New Year aren't good. At first I was upset, and that is putting it mildly. I cried. Then I happened to read a column by Louis Sobol who spoke of the "hate" mail that arrives whenever he mentions certain people. Through the years, he has come to realize, he says, that anyone who is in the public eye must contend with this... and I am thankful only that I am not an important writer such as he, receiving many letters of this type. I have never been able to grow a shell around this heart of mine... and it still bruises—not so easily as once, but far too easily. I have never in my life known hate... or even a dislike cruel enough to spur me into action against anyone. I am grateful for this, and I pray it continues. No one is liked by everyone... that would be a miracle even Christ could not perform for Himself. But I do wish that everyone who so actively dislikes me would meet me face to face, tell me why, and give me the opportunity to set right, if possible, anything held against me.

But even with this on my mind, nothing could take away the joy of a Christmas which held so much of kindness and beauty. I appreciate all the cards... and the notes upon them... I am grateful to the friend who divided her flowering begonia when she learned mine was no longer blooming... to at least three people for medals and prayers... to the 375 young people of East Stroudsburg schools, and Kenneth Raessler, for their wonderful concert of Friday night... for the unexpected gifts of fruit, candy, homemade cookies, pot holders, and candles from people whom, in some cases, I hardly know... to our Wyckoff executives for being the kind of people they are... to Miss Charlotte Ayers for making me a lovely Madonna and writing an original poem... and to all of the Wyckoff customers whom we, in our store, hope we served with the kind of efficiency and friendliness they deserve.

Held In Murder Of Neighbor

ALIQUIPPA, Pa. (AP) — Dan Pipkin, 57, of Aliquippa, has been charged with murder in the shooting of his next-door neighbor at a Christmas party.

Pipkin is accused of pumping four pistol bullets into 57-year-old Andrew Wright Sunday at Wright's apartment where the party was held.

Police gave this account: Pipkin came to the party uninvited. He had a drink, became noisy and was asked to leave by Wright.

About 15 minutes later, Pipkin returned to the party with a revolver in his hands and shouted: "I've got mine. Have you got yours?"

Then he killed Wright. He was arrested a short time later outside the apartment. The gun was still in his hands.

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: My husband and I own a four-family flat. We live in one and rent out the other three. I showed a vacant apartment to a lady who said there were only two adults in her family—her husband and herself. I told her we didn't allow dogs, cats or children under twelve.

She liked the apartment and signed a two-year lease. After they moved in, we found out they had twelve parakeets and one parrot. There is squawking and talking from that apartment all day long. Everybody is complaining. Can we do anything about this now?

HOOKED Dear Abby: If your lease had a loophole big enough for thirteen birds to fly through, you need a lawyer.

Dear Abby: I am a 16-year-old boy writing to you about my mother. I am the "man of the house" because my father died when I was five. I have two younger sisters. My mother is a wonderful woman. She is very pretty, too. She's worked hard to keep our family together.

She has been going with a man for four years. He gets her hopes up about marrying her, sets the date and tells her to make the plans, and then he postpones the wedding. This upsets my mother and she gets discouraged and cries a lot. Last week he did this for the fifth time. My mother is so broken up she hasn't been able to go back to work yet.

Do you think it is my place to talk to this man and find out what his intentions are? Mother has no one else to protect her.

"MAN OF THE HOUSE" Dear Abby: I'm afraid you'd be wasting your time. When a man postpones a wedding five times, it is fairly obvious that he doesn't want to get married. Talk to your mother and encourage her to seek counsel and guidance.

INTERESTED AUNT Dear Abby: I have a nephew who is ten years old and plays with dolls. He dresses up in his mother's high heels, clothes and hats and "plays house" with his six-year-old sister. I've never seen him play a boy's game and he prefers playing with little girls. His parents either don't notice or don't think there is anything odd about it. Is there a kind of subtle way to point this out to them? Everyone in the family is disturbed by them.

Dear Abby: "Subtle" approaches are usually too subtle to be effective. A male member of your family should tell the boy's father that the boy needs some masculine influence. Perhaps his feminine tendencies are so dominant that professional help is needed. The "kindest" thing you can do for this nephew is to act at once.

Shaw, Van Brocklin Retire

Eagles Beat Packers 17-13 For Pro Title

By CURT PRINS
Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA—The Philadelphia Eagles, following the pattern of the weather, whipped the Green Bay Packers 17-13 Sunday at Franklin Field to win the National Football League Championship.

A crowd of 67,325 plus a national television audience saw the Eagles start slowly in the mid-30 degree weather but when the weather warmed up, so did the Eastern Champion Eagles.

It was a rookie, 210-pound fullback Ted Dean, who played the biggest part in getting the Eagles their winner's share of $51,650 a man, the highest pay-off in league history.

Dean's 53-yard fourth period kickoff return set up Philadelphia's winning touchdown and the Wichita University graduate roared around left end from the five, minutes later to score the clincher.

Tough Day

It was a tough day for quarterback Norm Van Brocklin of the Eagles and Paul Hornung, of Green Bay, who were billed as the players who would decide the outcome of the game. Van Brocklin, who retired after the game, along with Eagle coach Buck Shaw, hit on only nine of 20 pass attempts for 197 yards and a touchdown, well below the performances that earned him the league's Most Valuable Player title.

Hornung missed a seven-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the first half, that may have cost the Packers the title.

The former Notre Dame quarterback, who works as a halfback for Green Bay, injured his shoulder in the middle of the third quarter when he was brought down by a Chuck Bednarik "bear" tackle. Hornung appeared only twice after that, to kick a point after touchdown and to kick off.

Against Wall

Until the middle of the second quarter, the Eagles played in their own territory and looked completely ineffective against the Packers, the near-freezing weather and a 15-mile-an-hour wind.

The Eagles, who posted a 10-2 mark during the regular season, were in trouble on the first play.

After Tim Brown returned Hornung's opening kickoff to the Eagle 22, Van Brocklin tried to hit left halfback Bill Barnes with a quick flat pass. But Bill Quinlan intercepted and moved to the 11-yard line. League statisticians later ruled that it was a lateral not a pass that Van Brocklin had attempted.

The powerful Packer ground game, with fullback Jim Taylor and Hornung carrying, moved the ball to the Eagle seven.

On third down Taylor managed only a yard on a sweep around left end and when he tried to pick up the first down through the middle on the next play, he was stopped short by linebacker Chuck Weber of West Chester State.

Back in Trouble

Minutes later the Eagles were back in trouble. This time Dean rammed 10 yards on the frozen turf but fumbled when he was hit on the 20-yard line and Bill Forester recovered for the Packers.

Three running plays later the Packers were on the eight but an offside penalty moved them back to the 13. Quarterback Bart Starr tossed two incomplete passes into the end zone and on fourth down Hornung booted a 20-yard field goal, to give the Packers a 3-0 lead with 6:50 seconds gone in the game.

Later in the period the Packers launched another drive that carried them to another field goal.

Starting from their own 37, after Van Brocklin got off a 49-yard punt, the Packers moved to the Eagles' 29 on runs by Taylor and Hornung and a Starr to Gary Knefelc pass, good for 32 yards.

Go For Broke

With a first down on the 29, the Packers went for the bundle. Hornung moved around right end, stopped and lofted a pass towards Boyd Dowler, who was all by himself in the end zone. But the pass was lofted a little too much, giving wingback Bob Freeman a chance to get one hand on the ball and knock it down.

A Starr to Dowler pass on the next play added 14 yards and a first down. But that's as far as the Western Champs advanced and on fourth down, Hornung kicked his second field goal, a 23-yarder with only 1:44 gone in the period.

By this time the field began to thaw and so did the Eagles. After an exchange of punts the Eagles took over on their own 43 and in two plays had six points.

On first down Van Brocklin hit MacDonald on a pass up the middle for 22 yards and then the Dutchman sent MacDonald straight down the sideline to haul in a 35-yard touchdown toss. MacDonald was three yards behind Packer defender Em Tunell when he caught the ball and scampered into the end zone and into the midst of some 100 Eagle fans, who engulfed the small flanker back. Bobby Walstone converted and the Eagles were in front 7-6.

The Packers could not move the ball after the kickoff and McGee punted dead on the Bird's 26.

Hits Retzlaiff

Van Brocklin unloaded a 41-yard pass to Pete Retzlaiff, who made the best catch of the ball game and the Eagles were on the Green Bay 33. Dean made three yards on a sweep and then moved for 22 yards with a Van Brocklin pass.

It was first and goal on the Packer eight but three plays and three incomplete passes later it was fourth down at the same spot. Walston, who was second to Hornung in scoring during the regular season, kicked a 15-yard field goal to increased the Eagles' lead to 10-6.

With only a few minutes left in the half, the Eagles went into a four man line to protect against a long pass. Starr went for the short passes and moved the club from his own 20 to the Eagle seven, with only 11 seconds left in the half.

The Packers had used all of their first-half timeouts and lined-up for a field goal attempt without going into a huddle.

When the Eagles' Joe Robb was slow getting to his side of the scrimmage line, center Jim Ringo of the Packers helped him across with a swift left hand. The officials jumped in and prevented any further action.

Decline Penalty

An Eagle popped offside with two seconds remaining. It stopped the clock but the Packers declined the penalty, because it would have put the ball on the two and increased the angle of the boot.

Hornung's kick curved off to the left and at the half it was still 10-6, Eagles.

Neither team threatened seriously again until the end of the third period, when the Eagles stopped Taylor on their 25 and took over.

Van Brocklin called on the Eagles' manager running attack and for the first time in the game it was effective, moving the ball to the Packer five. But the Dutchman went back to the pass and John Symank intercepted in the end zone.

The Eagles checked the Packers and on fourth down McGee went back to punt.

One Rusher

Joe Robb was the only Eagle to rush McGee and he was shoved to the inside and boxed out of the play. McGee waited for an instant to make sure the Eagles were not going to rush and then raced down the sideline behind brought down on the Eagles 46. The Packer drive was still in motion when the quarter ended.

Taylor and Tom Moore, who replaced Hornung, when he was injured in the third period, moved the ball to the six and Starr passed for a touchdown to McGee. Hornung came back in to convert and kick off.

Dean, a Radnor High School graduate, grabbed the ball inside the five and behind a shield of blockers headed upfield. Willie Wood back peddled in front of the blockers for 20 yards, before he knifed through to knock Dean out of bounds on the Green Bay 10.

Stays on Ground

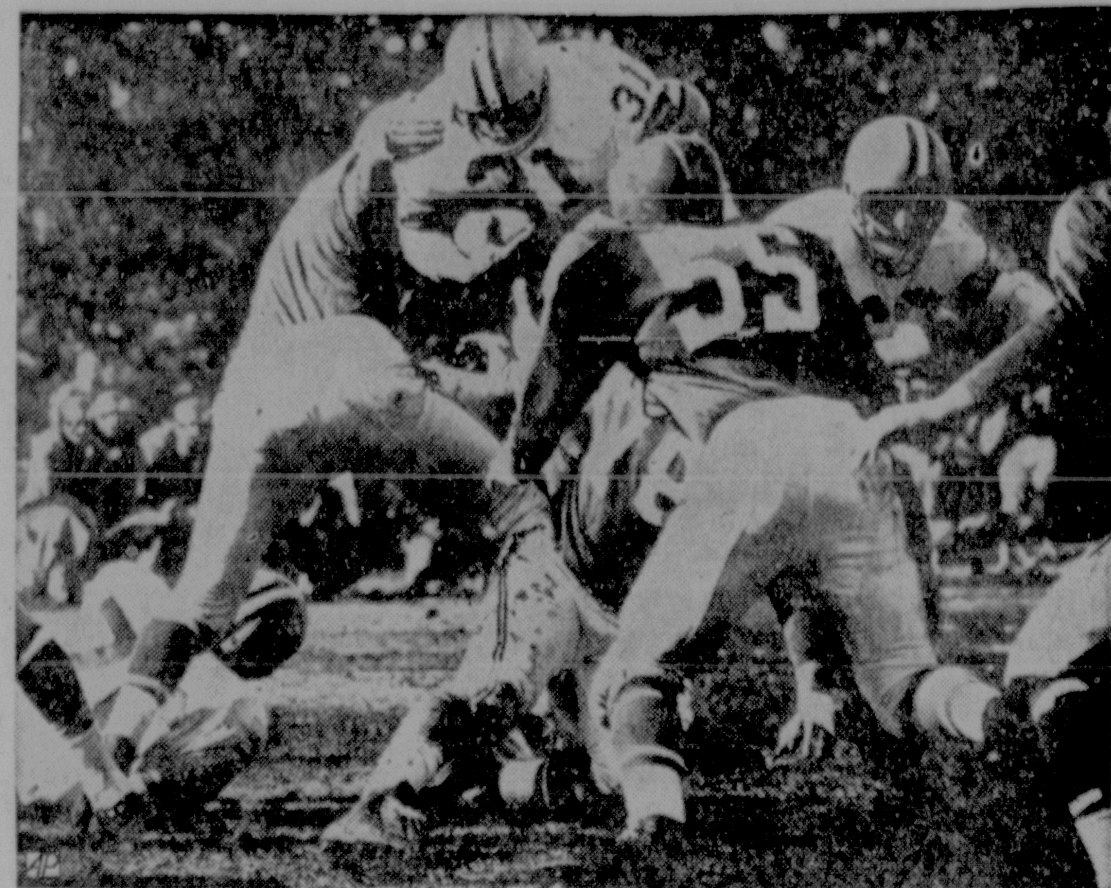

This time Van Brocklin stayed strictly on the ground, alternating Bill Barnes and Dean. Dean capped the drive by going over from the five on a sweep.

After Walston converted it was 17-13 with about six minutes remaining in the game.

Score by periods:

Says Coach Shaw

Eagles Won Title Because Starr Had To Throw

By JACK CLARK

Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "They said it couldn't be done but we showed them we could do it."

That was the refrain of the deliriously happy Philadelphia Eagles as they whooped up a dressing room celebration of the new National Football League championship.

"Our ability to hold them (the Green Bay Packers) in key situations was the big thing for us," Coach Buck Shaw said after the 17-13 victory Monday before a packed house of 67,325 at Franklin Field.

Were Fluffing

Shaw explained: "Our defense was able to take care of Green Bay's running so well that we forced (quarterback Bart) Starr to go to the air."

"We were fluffing (changing defenses) a bit out there," he said. "If we hadn't our defense rally would have been roughed up a bit."

Shaw refused to single out any member of his defensive platoon, saying simply, "I think they all did a great job."

Shaw went around and congratulated each of his players, saving his biggest hug and handshake for Chuck Bednarik who played the entire game at center and corner linebacker.

"Heck, I'm just now getting tired and probably will really be tired tonight. But I'm never tired during the game," Bednarik said.

Italians Hope Doubles Win

Will Trigger Cup Victory

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The Italians hoped Tuesday that a doubles' victory might trigger the second miracle comeback of the month and enable them to wrest the Davis Cup from Australia.

Down 2-0 after dropping the opening singles' matches to left-handers Neale Fraser and Rod Laver, the Europeans sent Orlando Sirola and Nicola Pietrangeli into the firing line for the doubles point they originally were favored to win.

They faced Fraser and Roy Emerson, whom they crushed in straight sets a few weeks ago in the finals of the Victorian championships.

Trilled 3-1

"Comebacks such as we staged against the Americans at Perth are things which one might expect only every four or five years," said Italian Captain Vanni Cana-pele. "But we hope we can make history repeat itself."

The Italians were two down to the Americans in the interzone finals and trailed 3-1 in the fifth and final set of the doubles before launching a rally which astonished the tennis world. Few observers gave them a chance of repeating this against the high-geared Australian team which appears in peak form.

Fraser, Wimbledon champion and the world's top-ranking amateur, got Australia off winging with a 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 triumph over Sirola who was a mere shadow of the giant who chopped down America's Barry MacKay in the clinching match of the interzone finals.

Then young Laver, loser of both his singles assignments in the 1959 challenge round and a questionable quantity this year, delivered the near-knockout blow by smashing Pietrangeli, Italy's top ace, 8-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Minneapolis Team Gets First Pick In Pro Football Draft

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League drafts 280 college players Tuesday with the new Minnesota Vikings getting the first choice from the annual grabbag.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle is scheduled to open the meeting at 10 a.m. General Manager Bert Rose selects for the Vikings, the league's 14th team, slated to operate in 1961 for the first time.

Following Minnesota, clubs draft in reverse order of their 1960 final standings—from last to first. Three clubs—Baltimore, San Francisco and Cleveland—will get two players in the first of the 20 rounds as the result of prior trades in which they acquired draft choices for players. Baltimore gets New York's first right, San Francisco has Pittsburgh's and Cleveland takes Detroit's.

Pick Order

Here is how they'll pick:

Minnesota, Dallas, Washington, Los Angeles, a tie between Pittsburgh and Chicago, Baltimore, St. Louis, a tie between Detroit and San Francisco, New York.

Then come Green Bay, Western Division champions, Cleveland, which had a better record, although it was only a runnerup for Eastern Division honors, and the Philadelphia Eagles, the league champions.

In cases of ties, the teams toss a coin for first round choice and then alternate in succeeding call-overs. All college players whose original class has graduated—or will in 1961—are eligible for the draft.

Just who will be the No. 1 player selected is up in the air this year, since Minnesota would appear to need everything. It would be natural for a new club to grab a good passing quarterback, but there have been reports the Vikings will get the veteran George Shaw from the Giants. If so, Rose may dig in the bag for a strong linebacker, another vital commodity.
